The caller arrived at the house shortly after and claimed that her grandmother is not being treated properly and that the husband is misusing the grandmother's money. The overall issue is that both the caller and the husband claim that the other is misusing the grandmother's money. The grandmother remained a neutral party throughout the argument. Upon my arrival, I spoke with the complainant, Shirley Collins, who stated a group of juveniles came over to her residence and when she tried to go outside to speak with them her daughter, Ellisa Collins, came out of their residence and began fighting with a female juvenile, identified as Sierra Whitted. When I asked Ellisa why she went outside to fight with Sierra she stated Sierra and another female juvenile named "Alice" wanted to fight and that was why they came to her residence. Ellisa admitted to fighting with Sierra and showed me text messages between herself and "Alice" which showed that both sides made plans for the fight to occur. Sierra was not located at the time of the incident in order to question her about it. Once I advised Shirley that Ellisa was a part of the reason the fight occurred she did not want to pursue charges and stated she would be handling Ellisa's punishment and if anyone came back to her residence to call the police.
